THIRD TO GIANTS

WILD PITCH IS AID TO GIANTS

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Two singles, an error and a wild pitch in the second inning gave the New York Giants two runs here this afternoon and enabled the National league champions to beat the Washington Senators, 6 to 4 in the third game of the world series.

Battling gamely as they did all season and in the first games of the series, the Senators rallied in the ninth inning and gave the ninth inning and gave the Giants a terrible fright. They scored one run and McGraw had to use three pitchers to stop them.

With the bases filled and the stands in an uproar, McGraw pulled out Ryan and sent Jonnard in. He issued a base on balls and forced in a run. John Watson, the former Brave, was then called on with a sore arm. He steadied and got Little Muddy Ruel, the Washington catcher, for the third out on a little roller to Lindstrom.

Buck Harris, the young manager of the Senators, made the error that put the first run on the bases and big "Firpo" Marberry, who pulled yesterday's game out of the fire, made the wild heave that scored another.

Terry opened the second inning with a single and Wilson fanned. Jackson hit to Bluege and the Washington third baseman tried for a double play. His throw to second was perfect but Harris dropped the ball and Terry and Jackson were safe. Old Hank Gowdy delivered a single that scored Terry. Marberry then filled the bases with passes and uncorked a wild pitch that allowed Jackson to score.

Three more runs were scored by the Giants. In the third inning Kelly was walked, went around on Terry's single and scored while a double play was being made on Terry and Wilson. In the fourth Bill Ryan who had been hustled in to save Hugh McQuillan and who let a run in by a pass with the bases filled got the run back by putting a homer into the upper right field stands. Miller's error on Gowdy, a sacrifice and Lindstrom's double scored the fifth run in the sixth inning.

The Senators didn't have much luck hitting McQuillan but he had less luck in locating the plate and he had to be jerked out of the box in the fourth inning with the bases filled.

Rice walked to start the inning. Judge doubled. Bluege drew a pass and Rice scored on Miller's sacrifice fly. McQuillan then passed Ruel. The bases were filled and Tate, a young catcher was sent in to bat for Marberry. McQuillan was jerked, and Ryan who relieved him, passed Tate and allowed Judge to walk home.

McQuillan and Ryan were saved several times by the brilliant work of Frank Frisch, the captain of the Giants who robbed the slugging "Goose" Goslin of three sure hits by running far back into center field to make a running one-hand catch over his shoulder. Pep Young also made a headlong diving shoestring catch that saved trouble.

Sam Rice, the Washington outfielder, made the outstanding play of the day when he raced to the right field wall and pulled down Lindtsrom's line drive over first with a one hand stab.

Today's victory gave the Giants a lead of two games to one in the series and placed the Senators in a tough position. If George Mogridge, the Senator southpaw, fails to stop the Giants their cause is almost hopless. Johnson, Zachary, Marberry, Russell, Martina and Speece have been used, and only Johnson and Mogridge give any promise of doing better in another start.

CLOUDY AT WASHINGTON

Little Indication of Rain as Third Day of World Series Gets Under Way.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The sun was making a brave effort to clear up the weather for the third game of the world's series here today and up to 8 a. m. was making an even battle with clouds and haze that floated over the city.

The official forecast for the day was "generally cloudy."

There was little indication of rain, however, and fans believed the sun would burn away the mists during the morning.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Weather for the world's series games in New York today and tomorrow will be "fair and cooler," the weather bureau here predicted today.

NEW HIGH FOR MAY WHEAT

Soars to $1.56, an Increase of 3 Cents Over Saturday's Close.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—May wheat hit another new high on this crop for all time today when it soared to $1.56, an increase of 3 cents over Saturday's close. December wheat opened 2 5-8 cents higher at $1.51 while July wheat was up 1 1-4 at $1.42.

Corn and oats registered increases ranging from 1-4 to 1 1-8 cents. Higher foreign markets caused a sympathetic movement on the board of trade here.

PAPER WATER PIPES.

PHILADELPHIA, (By Mail).—Water pipes of paper is the latest says the Pennsylvania public service information committee. It is a French invention. The paper or pasteboard is wound around the shaft of a machine that has a tank containing adhesive material, with which the paper is coated before the actual winding takes place. The layers are coated with tar, and finally a bath of bitumen is given as a finishing coat.

BUTLER'S PETITION SHORT

Lacks Sufficient Names and Has Filed No Acceptance to Nomination by Petition.

Secretary of State Pool has taken no action on the petition filed by Dan B. Butler's friends last Saturday. The petition asks that Butler's name be placed on the general election ballot as a candidate for governor by "petition," with political party designation.

Mr. Butler has not complied with that part of the law requiring an acceptance of nomination, nor has he declined progressive nomination. He is already the progressive party candidate for governor. The petition should contain 1,000 names. The Butler petition contains only 773 names which appear to the secretary of state to be in legal form, with postoffice address. There are 648 names with no postoffice, making a total of 1,420 names.

Secretary Pool is in doubt about what to do with the petition if an acceptance is filed. He finds that a candidate can runs as a representative of two political parties, as Mr. Pool is doing in his own right, but he knows of no authority which permits a candidate to be the nominee of one political party and to be nominated by petitioners acting for themselves and not as members of a party. The law does not permit the name of a candidate to be placed twice upon the ballot, so if Mr. Butler runs on two certificates of nomination he will be entitled to have these words pronted after his name: "Progressive—By Petition." He could derive no benefit from a party circle as a petition candidate but would from the progressive party circle.

MAIL FRAUD IS CHARGED

Charles N. Hampton, Formerly of Lincoln, Indicted With Four Florida Promoters.

An indictment charging Charles N. Hampton and four other men with using the mails to defraud, was received at the federal district court Monda, together with the commissioner's report showing that Mr. Hampton was arrested here September 25, and is being held in default of $3,000 bond. He is a former Lincoln man but has lived in Florida for the past fifteen years. The indictment was returned at Pensacola.

Mr. Hampton and the other alleged conspirators are said to have organized many companies under such names as the Saint George Cooperative colony, Oyster Growers Cooperative association, Apalachicola Land and Development company and hallf a dozen others, and sold shares of stock to tourists and winter residents at high prices. Their use of the mails for distributing circulars and newspaper advertisements resulted in the federal indictment last July. Mr Hampton incured in the various companies as office manager. He was arrested here September 25, while visiting relatives.

ADVANCE THREE CASES.

Three important cases were advanced b, the supreme court Monday. The one in which several farm bureaus are interested and which involves the legal competency of women to sign in remonstrances against county aid was set for October 27. One from Cheyenne county, which involves the liability o the guaranty fund for excess deposits in the Nebraska State bank of Sidney, placed three by Myrtle Lancaster, county treasurer, was set for November 3. The same date was fixed for the suit between the Burlington railroad and the Platte Valley Drainage district of Colfax county, which involves how much of the cost of digging a ditch the railroad ought to pay.

SUPREME COURT SESSION

Over 700 Cases on Docket of United States Highest Tribunal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—With more than seven hundred cases on its docket, the United States supreme court today opended its 1924 term.

Chief Justice Taft, presiding, announced a change in the order of business for opening day. Instead of adjourning immediately to call upon the president to notify the court was in session, the court entertained motions and listened to arguments on the first cases on the docket.

An unusually large number of lawyers appeared to seek admission to the bar of the supreme court.

At the ending of the day's sitting the chief justice and the associate justices will proceed to the white house to pay their respects to President Coolidge.

LAFOLLETTE OUT TO WIN

Presidential Candidate Ridicules Charges He Wants to Throw Election Into Congress.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Ridiculing charges that he is attempting to throw the election into congress, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, independent presidential candidate, upon his arrival today at the first stop on his cross country campaign trip, declared he is "out to win."

"We are in this fight to win and we will not be content with anything except victory," he said.

Asserting that the election would be thrown into congress if it were held today LaFollette said when the rising progressive tide reaches its crest in November there will be a clean cut election which will place the control of the government in the hands of the people.

The independent candidate was given a noisy welcome by a crowd that met him at the station.

LABOR ASKS LARGE FUND

BRITISH PARTY APPEALS FOR 12,000 POUNDS.

Premier MacDonald Heads List of Contributors With 100 Pounds, For General Election.

LONDON, Oct. 6—In anticipation of a general election, the labor party today appealed for a campaign fund of 12,000 pounds. Premier MacDonald headed the list of contributors, donating 100 pounds.

Business leaders have fought the election on the ground that confusion which would hurt commerce would result, but nevertheless an election is apparently inevitable and many predict it will be held November 8.

The MacDonald cabinet meets this afternoon to decide whether to invite its own death warrant by insisting on a house of commons vote Wednesday on the amended Tory motion for investigation of the communist editor, Campbell, who is charged with sedition.

Premier MacDonald returned last night from a visit to the home of Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden highly dubious whether he would spend another week end there as premier.

CANNOT RUN OVER CURB

Cowgill Calls Attention to Ordinance Which Forbids.

Drivers of coal wagons are forbidden by city ordinance to drive over curbs, even when planks or blocks are laid as run-ways, and they will be prosecuted in police court if detected, Commissioner Cowgill declared Monday.

"It is my purpose to aid the coal drivers as much as possible to conform to the city ordinance," said the commissioner. "They know that unless a curb has been cut especially as a driveway, they are not allowed to drive over it.

When they refuse to drive over an uncut curb, they are only complying with the city ordinance."

Thousands of dollars worth of damage has been sustained by the city due to the breaking of curb stone by coal wagons, the commissioner declared. He further asserted that sidewalks on streets that have no curbs cannot be crossed unless planks are laid across the walk the full width of the wagon. When two planks wide enough for the wheels to pass over are used as a crossing, sidewalks are often broken, he said.

DAWES INVADES ENEMY'S AREA

ON BOARD THE DAWES TRAIN EN ROUTE TO DULUTH, Minn., Oct. 6.—Once again Charles G. Dawes, vice presidential candidate on the republican ticket, is in LaFollette territory, on his most extensive tour of the northwest.

The tour is being watched with great interest, as Dawes is expected to give answer to the demand of Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, that Dawes withdraw from the republican ticket. Dawes is scheduled for numerous speeches in Iowa and Nebraska, and members of his party indicated he would "do some shooting" in those states.

Dawes made his first speech of this trip at Eau Claire, Wis., today, holding to this text that the constitution must be defended.

The issue of the campaign he said, is "the constitution, the flag and the president of the United States on one hand, and the red flag of socialism on the other."

A POLITICAL FOOTBALL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—A demand that a thoro investigation be made of the manner in which federal prohibition agents obtained their jobs has been made on the Couzens committee investigating the internal revenue bureau by the H. W. Marsh, secretary of the National Civil Service Reform league. "All the federal prohibition agents whose duty it is to enforce the law are political appointees," Marsh wrote Senator Couzens. The Drift to Cities.

Current History Magazine: At the birth of the American nation 130 years ago, its largest city had not more than 43,000 inhabitants and only one person out of thirty lived in the six towns of 8,000 or more inhabitants. In 1800 there were in the United States only six cities whose population was over 8,000 and these contained only per cent of the population of the entire country. In 1900 there were 547 such cities, which at this time contained 32.9 per cent of the country's population. But in 1920 the number of such cities had increased to 924 and contained 43.8 per cent of the total population. Today nearly one-half of the American population lives in places of over 2,500 inhabitants, a tenth in villages and hardly more than two-fifths in the open country.

What Makes Law Practice.

Ft. Wayne News-Sentinel: There are two kinds of lawyers—those who are trying to enforce the laws and those who are trying to evade them.

Birmingham Age-Herald: At least one sound economic step will have been taken when a lot of German labor is released from the printing of worthless marks.

LITTLE APPLAUSE FOR GIANT[illegible]

Marberry and McQuillan Pitch[illegible] Third Game of the World[illegible] Series Opens at Polo Grounds.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

POLO GROUNDS, NEW [illegible] Oct. 6.—Back home after [illegible] their own in the invasion o[illegible] ington, the New York Gian[illegible] times champions, resumed t[illegible] tle for the world's champ[illegible] with the Washington Senat[illegible] the third game of the series t[illegible] ternoon.

With the series squared two games in the national ca[illegible] the National league champion[illegible] the opportunity to get the [illegible] again which they held for one[illegible] after beating Walter Johnson[illegible] big Senator ace in the first g[illegible] In addition to the confidence [illegible] quired by making it impossible[illegible] Johnson to win the three ga[illegible] that Washington expected of [illegible] the Giants had the advantage o[illegible] familiar field and a park in wh[illegible] they have always done well.

The day was ideal for baseb[illegible] The skies were clear and the s[illegible] was working in mid-August sty[illegible] The field was fast and showed th[illegible] results of the groundkeeper[illegible] labors since the regular seaso[illegible] closed.

The small bleacher section i[illegible] center field was filled to capacity before noon and the unreserved sections of the upper stands had only a few vacant spots on the far wings of the big stadium.

New York's casual way of looking at a world series was very pronounced after the enthusiasm that had been shown by the stands in the two games at Washington. When Art Nehf, the pitching hero of the first game, strolled across the field with John Watson, there was only a little demonstration.

The Giant regulars came on the field in scattered groups and didn't get much of a tumble. Perhaps the scandal was taken more seriously than officials would have it believed.

The lineup:

WASHINGTON:	NEW YORK:
Leibold, cf.	Lindstrom, 3b.
Harris, 2b.	Frisch, 2b.
Rice, rf.	Young, rf.
Goslin, lf.	Kelly, cf.

Ruel, c.	Gowdy, c.
Marberry, p.	McQuillan, p.

Umpires: Dineen, behind the plate; Quigley at first base; Connolly at second; Klem at third.

McQuillan looked to be in good form when warming up. He was shooting a fast curve and using a nice change of pace.

Marberry seemed intent on getting himself a fast ball in the right place. He was somewhat wild at the start.

Huntzinger and several rookie pitchers served them up to the Giants batters when they started to tune up their eyes. McQuillan and Ryan hit them out with the regulars.

The upper stands were almost filled an hour before the game time and there was a great crush in the lower stands.

Kelly was in center field, Wilson in felt and Terry on first base when the Giants went out for their fielding drill. Gowdy was working behind the bat.

The field was cleared two minutes before game time and the ground keepers smoothed off the infield. The umpires came out and took the line ups from Manager Harris and Captain Frisch.

Mayor Hylan threw out the first ball, and the fans settled back in their seats for the first inning. A couple of huge floral wreaths were brought and presented to the Washington players. There was discussion at the plate about ground rules about overthrows. The Giants took their places amidst great cheering.

TRAFFIC IS HEAVY NOW

COAL, GRAIN AND STOCK SUPPLY BULK OF BUSINESS.

Up Trend in Grains Make a Demand For Cars—Coal Moving in a Fairly Heavy Volume.

W. F. Thiehoff, general manager of Burlington railroad lines east, who is in Lincoln to attend the Burlington Veterans' association meeting tonight, reports a heavy business on the lines east due to a heavy grain movement, a better than usual coal business, and a good stock business. Mr. Thiehoff is to be toastmaster at the veterans' dinner Monday evening.

"We are handling more grain than we handled during the same period last year," says Mr. Thiehoff, "and the Illinois coal business is heavier than it was one year ago. The business from the Missouri mines is not so heavy, but we are now handling an average of a thousand cars a day of southern Illinois coal. This is maving at a time when it is most economical to handle the business. We have had a good run of feeder stock. We are moving the business without trouble and the situation as to traffic is fairly satisfactory."

L. B. Lyman, general superintendent of the Nebraska district, reported Monday morning a scramble for grain cars. With the supply on hand and the possibility of placing them where wanted the forecast was that between 375 and 400 cars would be loaded. The increased demand came so suddenly, with the rise in the market, that the car demand could not be foreseen accuartely.

MUNN ENDED A HECKLING

GAVE NOTICE WOULDN'T BE INTERRUPTED.

Dramatic Feature Attended Republican Meeting at Stromsburg Where Postoffice Fight Still Rankles.

STROMSBURG, Neb., Oct. 6.—A dramatic feature of the recent republican political meeting in Stromsburg recently passed thru a lively postoffice fight. The name of the woman presented as the person most in favor was later withdrawn when it was found, as stated, that she was a socialist, and another woman substituted.

The feeling thus aroused had not subsided when the caravan came to town. George A. Williams, republican candidate for lieutenant governor, who opened the speechmaking, had not progressed very far until Mr. Flippin, who was a former star performer on the University of Nebraska football team, interrupted to say that the people desired the postmastership discussed.

Mr. Williams retorted that he knew nothing about it, and insisted on the right to be heard. He was finally allowed to proceed. A little later Monte Munn, a giant in stature, also a former guard at Nebraska university, mounted the platform. He announced his name, and said that he had been sent out by the republican state central committee to discuss the issues of the campaign. Walking over to where Mr. Flippin was sitting he said, in substance:

"You and I have both played on the university football team. One of the things drilled into us was fair play. Now I am going ahead to discuss issues, and I won't be interrupted."

There were no more heckiings, and even when Congressman McLaughlin took the platform no one asked him to talk about the postmastership.

The Walthill Times has the following to say of Monte Munn, legislative nominee who is on a tour with republican state officers:

"Is Monte Munn the famous university football star, on his brother? That was the paramount question of the local fans after he was introduced to follow Mr. Taylor. Some say he is and some say he isn't, and one who claims to know the bunch says both were star players, which is a comforting solution of the question.

"At any rate Monte is a football man. He shows it in his build, in his speech; and his address can be best characterized in that metaphorical style.

"Monte has a big voice rolling out of a six-foot athletic physique. It is a voice that could call signals so that the grandstand might hear. In speaking he stands on his toes, in poise ready for a dash thru the line of men before him. There is intensity of mind and quickness of positive execution when he launches a verbal attack.

"He made no offside plays, but came near fumbling the ball a time or two which supports the theory that he is the big brother, but he lost no advantage in doing so, and frequently he hit his opponent's line with a terrific charge.

"While his address lacked something of the well ordered scholarly dignity of his travelling mate's speech, everybody enjoyed Monte's tactics to the last."

LUCY GREEN PASSES ON

FORMER LINCOLN TEACHER DIES SUNDAY NIGHT.

Death of Widely Known Instructor in Public Schools Indirectly Caused By a Nervous Disorder.

Miss Lucy Green, teacher in the Lincoln public schools for more than twenty years, died late Sunday night at her home 2501 R street. Death followed a severe illness of more than a week.

Lucy Green was born in Orange, N. J., of American revolutionary stock, her ancestors having come over with the Walloons, the first settlers of New York. She came to Lincoln from Virginia with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. William Green, about thirty-five years ago. She had much literary talent and for many years was a successful teacher of English in the Lincoln high school. A few years ago she had a nervous breakdown which caused her to resign from school work. She was a devoted member of the church of the Holy Trinity since first coming to the city. The memorial tablet to men of that church who served in the last war, placed at the side of the chancel, was given by Miss Green. Two years ago she prepared a history of the Walloons leaving Belgian on account of religious persecution, which has been published and widely used in connection with the celebration this year of the three hundredth anniversary of their coming to this country.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—With more than seven hundred cases on its docket, the United States supreme court today opended its 1924 term.

Chief Justice Taft, presiding, announced a change in the order of business for opening day. Instead of adjourning immediately to call upon the president to notify the court was in session, the court entertained motions and listened to arguments on the first cases on the docket.

An unusually large number of lawyers appeared to seek admission to the bar of the supreme court.

At the ending of the day's sitting the chief justice and the associate justices will proceed to the white house to pay their respects to President Coolidge.

SNAKE AND OTHER TALES

GOVERNOR BRYAN RETURNS WITH TWO KINDS.

One Relates to Rattlesnakes He Shot and the Other to the Trend Away From Republicanism.

Governor Bryan returned to his office in the capitol Monday with a snake story and another not yet classified about the trend of political sentiment in Nebraska and Kansas which he says he finds sweeping away from the republican party right into the democratic party. He discovered the snake exclusively in Nebraska, about eighteen miles north of Benkelman, where he was with a party hunting prairie chickens and investigating the purchase of twenty acres of additional land for the state fisheries at Benkelman.

Upon his return the governor related the snake story first, closing with, what some consider, the one of lesser importance about the "drift" toward democracy as the only party which promises relief to agriculture.

The snake story opens with a deputy game warden acting as beater of the bush for the gubernatorial party. He came upon a rattlesnake which gave no warning but tried to wiggle to safety. A shout from the faithful deputy brought Governor Bryan to the scene with his shotgun grasped easily in the graceful position assumed by hunters in moving pictures.

"Bang," went the gun, and when the white dust used in movie guns had cleared away the deputy shouted in alarm, pointing to the wriggling form of the serpent slowly moving up the hill: "There he goes."

"His head is off; there is no danger," reassured Governor Bryan.

Sure enough the governor's charge of shot had severed the head with three inches of body.

D. H. Oliver, who has faithfully accompanied Governor Bryan everywhere except to his home, all in the interests of readers of the Associated Press, then discharged his gun at the head which was wickedly eyeing the party as it crawled along. Governor Bryan presented Mr. Oliver with the rattling end of the snake. It comprises nine rattles and a button. The snake was five feet long.

"The drift is away from the republican party," said Governor Bryan, after he had finished his snake story. "Some voters are going to the democratic party and some to the LaFollette party, but everywhere the democratic voters are staying within their party lines. The republicans are disorganized and unrest is spreading. The republican senators in the west are either bolting the republican administration or withholding their support from it on account of the attiude of that administration toward agriculture. This trend will

State Committee Seeks to Enjoin Pool From Listing Four Psuedo Affiliators on the Ballot.

An action asking that Charles Pool, Floyd Bollen, John H. Morehead and Ashton C. Shallenberger, be ousted from the ranks of the progressive party, was filed by the state committee of the progressive party, in the district court Monday morning.

The petition alleges that these several politicians in accepting the nomination of the progressive party, certified that they were duly affiliated with the party when the records show that no such affiliation exists.

The petition further states that Mr. Shallenberger was illegally placed in the race by a petition signed by pseudo progressives who were not affiliated with the party. The records show that out of the twenty-eight men who signed the Shallenberger petition, only one is a progressive, four are republicans and the rest are democrats. It is further shown that Mr. Shallenberger did not file the affidavit of acceptance as required by law but in

SEVEN DIE IN RIOTING

Political Disorders Occuring in Cuba.

SUNDAY TRAIN FIRED UPON

Leaders of Both Factions Accuse the Other.

Former President Menocal's Meeting Target of Police—Fifty-seven Others Injured.

HAVANA, Cube, Oct. 6.—Seven persons were killed and fifty-seven wounded in political rioting at Camaguey last night, according to messages here today. Fighting started when police attempted to break up a meeting of former President Menocal, who is campaigning for another term as president of the republic.

Firing lasted two hours and order was not restored until the military had been called out.

The clash came as a climax to an eventful day for Menocal and his party, who were campaigning thruout the republic on a special train.

Early Sunday the train was fired on by persons between the towns of Flordia and Ssmeralda and later at Central Agramonte four coaches were derailed.

Following wrecking of their train, Menocal and party proceeded in automobiles to Camaguey, where their meeting started with enthusiasm.

It was not apparent which side started first as leaders of each faction accused the other.

The governor of the province, it was reported, sent a message to Secretary of Interior Iturralde here declaring the Menocalistas came to Camaguey heavily armed and started the trouble by attempting to disarm the local police force.

The assistant chief of police at Camaguey and two policemen are among the dead. Two citizens and a city inspector also were killed.

The bloodshed at Camaguey followed earlier fighting Saturday when one man was killed and three wounded in a political quarrel in a cafe at Cienfuegos, province of Santa Clara.

FOSDICK RESIGNS FROM HIS CHURCH

Refuses to Accede to Demand of Presbyterians That He Subscribe to Their Creed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, widelk known modernist Baptist preacher, today tendered his resignation as pastor of the First Presbyterian church of New York, refusing to accede to a demand of the Presbyterian general assembly that he subscribe to the creed of that denomination.

"My disinclination to become a Presbyterian minister," he said in a letter to the regular meeting of the New York presbytery, "is not at all due to denominational reasons."

"Were the transfers of my membership from one denomination to another the only question involved, I have no sectarian loyalties that would make the change difficult.

"But that is not the only question involved. The proposal of the general assembly calls for a definite creedal subscription, a solemn assumption of the theological vows in terms of the Westminster confession.

"In answer to this proposal I must in all honesty set my long standing and assured conviction that creedal subscription to ancient confessions of faith is a practice dangerous to the welfare of the church and to the integrity of the individual conscience."

The resignation was accepted by the presbytery and it was understood a new pastor for the church of the Presbyterian faith, will be appointed.

The disputes between Fosdick and the fundamentalists elements of the church is of long standing and came to a head at the general assembly in Grand Rapids, Mich last May when Fosdick's subscription to the creed of the church was demanded.

George Fisher of Falls City Finds Publicity Burdens His Personal Mail

From The Falls City Journal: "Now in regards to all this publicity. About all I've done since I staged this land division is open letters from all parts of the country and from all kinds of people offering everything from oil stock to marriage. I'm getting fed up on it. It's getting to be a nuisance."

The above is an almost verbatim quotation from the speech of of George W. Fisher, wealthy retired land owner, who two weeks ago divided more than $4[illegible] worth of property among his [illegible] children, as he unburdened his mind yesterday to a reporter from The Journal in regard to the many kinds of requests that have come to him since news of his generous act was spread thruout the country by various news service dispatches.

The nature of Mr Fisher's remarks leads one to believe that he is getting a generous opportunity at a hitherto unrevealed side of human nature "There sure are a lot of different kinds of fools in the world." Mr. Fisher confides after a week of mail has brought him numerous requests of almost every nature.

"Why somebody sent me a letter from Georgia yesterday saying that he had found a clipping about me in a Georgia paper and if I'd send a two-cent stamp and a dime he would send the clipping As if I hadn't enough publicity on this already.

"Ard take a look at this

"Gewiss wenn Sie ihrer riesen Mutter gedenken, wenn sie auf die ——" and thus on for a full single spaced typewritten page

'What' tell does that mean I'd like to know?"

Brief excerpts from other of the letters that intermittently give Mr. Fisher a good laugh follow:

"I suppose you will wonder how you come to be known away out here. Now if you are not married, I would like to hear from you Maybe some time you would need a housekeeper, and who knows I may fill the bill." This came in from Denver last Wednesday.

Another letter from Omaha follows: "Os, I saw your add in the paper I thought I would write you. I am poor and unable to work. Nobody knows but God and yourself how hard it is. My father is seventy-one years old and my mother is sixty-four. I am just a poor arphant boy in this big world I thought maybe you would have some left for me."

If Mr. Fisher ever lacks of a place to dispose of his money he can refer to the following from Colorado Springs: "I read of your manner in disposing of your land. Somehow it gave me the courage to ask you if you could help me"

"as i seen thru the papers you have disposed of your wealth to an extent i Noah Fyles thought i would drop you a line, and see if i could get a little help from you If you will accommodate me i certainly would appreciate a nice check for $1,000, and i know you won't miss it I don't drink nor have no bad habits"

This letter from Ohio was the only one that stated the exact amount needed

Writing from Lincoln and enclosing a self addressed stamped envelope a woman who says she is a trained 'nurse specialist' offers her services to care for Mr Fisher for she is trained in diseases that accompany old age "I would like to come down in your part of the country anyway," she added

NEARER TO END OF WAR

COOLIDGE DECLARES WORLD IS MAKING PROGRESS.

Coming Because Men and Women More and More Demand It, President Tells the Red Cross.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. — The world is making more progress toward ridding itself of war "than we yet fully realize," President Coolidge said in an address here today before the annual convention of the American Red Cross.

"It is toward such an ideal that the race is now yearning and striving," the president said. "It is making progress. The thought of ridding society of the very institution of war has seized powerfully on the minds of men. We shall not get it done by some magic formula in some inspired moment.

"But it is going to be done because men and women more and more demand it. We are making more progress in this direction than we yet fully realize."

Paying full tribute to the the work of the Red Cross in every quarter of the globe, the president said: "It is hard to avoid the temptation to speculate on the possible services of our humane and charitable agencies if they did not have to bear any of the burdens that are imposed by war.

"In a truly civilized world where the costs of armament, of pensions, of fortifications, were not required to be borne; where neither the spiritual nor physical suffering which war involves were inflicted; where resources could be used to promote, not to destroy happiness—in such a world what mighty works could be accomplished under the leadership of the Red Cross spirit.

"Poverty, ignorance, prejudice and all uncharitableness might be completely relieved and remedied. A very great part of the need for such organizations as the Red Cross would be ended before the world could realize it."

Mr. Cooldige addressed the hundreds of delegates to the convention in memorable continental hall, opening the sessions of the meeting. He lauded work of the organization, declaring it "indulges in no propaganda, knows no creed, party, politics, classes or groups,' and "is about the only organization I have known that does any good by looking for trouble.'

"The American Red Cross is proof that materialism is not the dominant motive of the people of the United States."

CAN YOU SOLVE—

The Mystery of the Duplicate Bonds

(One of the World's Greatest Detectives Did)

The moment that Rene Faralicq one of the commissioners of the parisian detective force found the small pasteboard box concealed beneath the boards in M. Rombert's study he knew that the riddle of the multiple finger prints was solved in spite of the fact that no two prints have ever been found to be identical.

As his assistant said, if it were a matter of one or two coincidences one might ascribe them to chance. But when one investigates eight robberies and notes that Rombert was the only guest who was present upon each occasion, the odds in favor of his guilt approach infinity."

Against this was the undoubted fact that entirely different finger prints had been found on the scene of each robbery—and finger prints never lie.

Faralicq chuckled as the thought occurred to him. "But liars may finger print," he added with a grim smile, tucking the box into his pocket.

When Rombert was brought to police headquarters he entered a calm, dispassionate denial of the charges against him and called the attention of the police to the fact that the finger prints discovered by the authorities bore no relation whatever to his.

"Certainly they didn't," agreed Faralicq. "You were far too clever for that. But you were not quite clever enough. You should have destroyed the evidence, once you had made use of it"—and he produced the box which he had taken from the secret hiding place in Rombert's house. Removing the lid, he disclosed a number of pairs of rubber gloves, upon the thumb and forefinger of each being a false finger print made by pressing down upon it one of the heated metal plates which the box contained.

"The idea of using a metal electrotype to forge finger prints was a clever one. M. Rombert," the commissioner added, "and it might have continued to work indefinitely had not the laws of coincidence and the position of a rug been against you."

The Mystery of the Duplicate Bonds.

Shortly after 10 o'clock on the night of October 24, 1921, a United States mail truck bound for the general postoffice in New York city was held up near the corner of Leonard street and Broadway and five mail pouches containing currency, Liberty bonds and other negotiable securities amounting to the staggering total of $1,350,000 were taken from it at the point of revolvers held by two masked bandits.

From the way in which it was conducted, it was clear that the robbery had been carefully planned and neither the truck driver nor his assistant was able to give any nor even to indicate the direction they had taken in making their clean getaway. In spite of the fact that virtually every operative attached to the postal inspection service was turned loose on the case, nothing approaching a clue developed for some six months—and the one which turned up then could only have been utilized by a detective as clever as Rush D. Simmons, chief of the Inspection Service.

In April, 1922, a clerk in a New York bank was startled to find that the bank had in its vaults two Bethlehem Steel bonds bearing the same number, a coincidence which was unheard of. His first thought was that one of the bonds had been forged, but upon investigation it proved to be genuine. Among the detective agencies notified was the United States Posal Inspection Service, for a batch of Bethlehem Steel bonds had been among the loot secured in the Leonard street holdup.

With only this meager clue to work on, could you have solved the mystery of the $1,350,000 robbery?

Chief Simmons did and recovered the major portion of the loot.

How?

The answer will appear tomorrow.

YETTER CASE TO BE TRIED

Damage Suit Growing Out of Crossing Accident Set For Hearing in Federal Court.

The damage suit of Mrs. Mattie Yetter of University Place against the Missouri Pacific is set for trial in the October term of federal district court, which opened Monday. Mrs Yetter is suing for $26,122 for the death of her son, Glenn, eighteen year old Wesleyan university student, which occurred last January 5 as the result of a crossing accident at Thirty-third and X streets. The petition charges that the view from the road is obscured at that point and that the Missouri Pacific had let its signal bell get out of repair, so that the occupants of the Yetter car had no warning that a train was approaching when they drove onto the crossing. The boy was fatally injured in the collision, and his mother asks $25,000 for his death, $275 for doctor and hospital bills, and $837 funeral expenses.

Two judgments by default were rendered Monday when the docket was read, both being in small suits brought by the Missouri Pacific against R. G. Stewart and R. M. Stewart. Ninteen are set for trial besides the Yetter case. Twelve are outgrowths of the Farmers and Merchants National bank at Fairbury, nine of these being suits brought by the receiver against stockholders and the others by the Burnes National bank of St. Joseph to collect notes originally made to the Fairbury bank.

SCHOOL ROW IS UP AGAIN

TWO MEMBERS DISOBEYED ORDERS OF PEOPLE.

Now Asking Supreme Court to Order Paid Salary of Teacher in Rump School They Maintained.

The morning session of the supreme court was devoted Monday to hearing arguments in a school row from Hamilton county that has been going on for more than three years. District No. 53 is located near to the town of Phillips, where a consolidated high school was built some years ago.

At the annual meeting in 1921 a motion was made to instruct the board to contract with this consolidated school for the instruction of the children from the district. It was figured that this would be cheaper and the children would get better instruction. Two of the three members of the board fought the proposition.

When a vote was taken the supporters of the plan lacked two or three votes of having the necessary two-thirds majority. A little later a special meeting was called to again vote on the proposal. This time the pros brought in several more votes, and as the opposition stayed away, the action taken was unanimous.

The moderator, who was for the plan, asked the other two members to approve a contract with the Phillips board of education. They refused, and he brought suit to compel them to do so. He won in the lower court. They appealed, but the supreme court upheld the lower court.

In the meanwhile the two opposing directors had started a rump school in the old schoolhouse, and at the end of the first month, on the refusal of the moderator to sign the warrant for the teacher's pay, they mandamused him to sign. They won, the lower court holding that the law permitted this. This appeal was argued in supreme court Monday. Attorneys for the moderator say the lower court overlooked another provision of the law which shows that his construction was not correct.

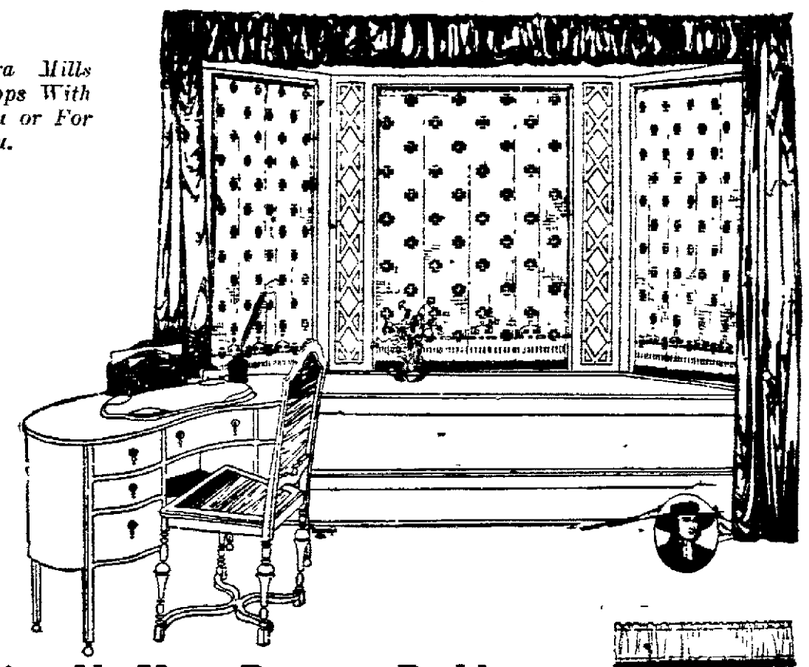
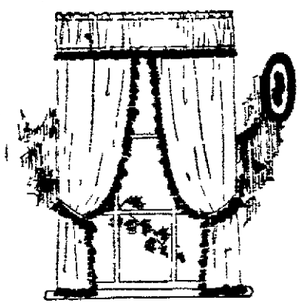
Homecraft and Congoleum Week

New Lines in Smart Curtains and Congoleums Ready for Your Selections

Vera Mills Shops With You or For You.



Bring Us Your Drapery Problems During Home Craft Week



—It is the object of our Drapery Department to show you the finest selections of drapery materials, together with the newest ideas for making the Home Beautiful.

—If the problem of how to "dress" some room of your home is troubling you bring that problem to us! We have had experience in helping to solve such problems for thousands of customers.

—We have, for instance, lace to veil your windows, cheerful cretonnes for light, bright effects; splendid plain materials for rich dull hanging—indeed the right merchandise for every desired form of home beautification.

How Do You Select New Curtains?

First for beauty, of course

—New curtains must be harmonious from without and within, a delight to the eye of the stranger who passes your home and the friend who visits it.

Second for Individuality

—"By your curtains you are judged." Because everyone knows that while your home may represent the taste of a professional architect, your curtains are your own selection—the only part of your furnishings seen and judged by the public at large.

Third for wear

—Have you ever stopped to think how much we demand—and get—in modern net curtains? How much beauty, personality and wear for so comparatively small a percentage of the money that goes for home furnishings?

Why Overtone Net Was Created

—For several seasons there has been an increasingly insistent decorative demand for a material which will give the decorative effect of gauze fabrics and yet have greater transparency and greater serviceability.

—Quaker Overtone Net meets these requirements. Upon its neutral ground is netted an "overtone" of color producing that delightful shimmer of color which has been the excuse for the use of gauze in window curtaining.

—As for serviceability, the sturdy thread of which Quaker Overtone Net is constructed will withstand the burning as well as the fading action of the sun, season after season.

At $1.75

Beautiful Radiant Lace $2.50 and $3

—Radiant Lace is a new curtain fabric of this season. The new homes and the homes that want something new for their windows will buy it. It is one of the most attractive curtainings ever produced.

—Radiant Lace is a rayon—artificial silk—that will wash well and hang right. It possesses a beautiful sunshine lustre that adds beauty to any room. It has a rich lustre and comes in medium size designs, and is as soft as a pocket handkerchief. May we have the pleasure of showing Radiant Lace first to you?

Quaker Colonial Filet Net is Sun-proof and Tub-proof

—Here is a curtaining colonial in spirit yet meeting the requirements of the modern window. Its filet net-ground was chosen because filet presents simplicity and serviceability, typically colonial virtues. Into this ground are introduced characteristic colonial patterns and colorings. At $2

Casement Lace at $2.75

—Decorators declare that Quaker Casement Lace is the final development of the casement treatment. It combines the dignity and refinement of the casement cloth with the element of transparency which is the basic requirement of any window covering. Many delightful patterns. At $2.75

FIRE LOSS IS $150,000

CUDAHY PLANT AT OMAHA SCENE OF BAD BLAZE.

Buildings Adjoining Main Plant Consumed But Brick Structure is Not Damaged Sunday.

OMAHA, Oct. 6.—The fire which broke out at 1 a. m. Sunday at the Cudahy Packing company plant here was finally extinguished at 4:30 p. m. Sunday. The loss will be about $150,000, officials of the company said. The cause of the blaze was still unknown today.

The entire lumber stock in the box factory was destroyed and boxes will have to be shipped here from the Cudahy plant at Sioux City and other points.

Buildings adjoining the main plant, including the box factory, Dutch Cleanser factory, chemical laboratory, hide cellar, lumber yard, oleomargarine plant, soap and glycerine factories were entirely consumed, but the main brick building was not damaged. Fourteen fire companies, including the whole south side battalion and several downtown companies prevented the destruction of the main plant.

AUTO WILL JUMP PUDDLE.

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 6.—Henry Toncray of Troupe, has set out to perfect what motorists have wished for—a puddle jumping automobile. Backed up by several years experience in the aviation service before and during the world war, Toncray has started tests with a "hybrid" machine, a cross between an air-cruising automobile and a road-going helicopter. The lifting propellors of the helicopter attachment to an automobile are twice the length of ordinary airplane blades. A simple hand clutch puts the lifting attachment in operation while the car is in motion. The machine is fitted with a nine-cylinder engine, which has shown sufficient power to drive the car while on the ground

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: May I add a word to the good advice you have already given to "A Dream Girl"?

But first permit me to tell you that I rejoice in the wisdom which is so freely given thru you to all who are searching for more light to work out their problems.

Dear Dream Girl. Your head and heart both say "no" to this man. Back of you is the strength to carry out your decision. True love does not coerce, nor does it criticise. His beloved is always ideally perfect, and love always humbly and patiently waits for any favorable response. He does not force his attentions, nor weave a web wherein to catch the object of his affections. True lovers each go half way and meet in that perfect balance—each giving all and receiving all—with no reservations. It is the only sure foundation of a real home—all else is like a house built upon sand, which the least little storm topples over, and which sometimes leaves the occupants scarred for life.

Dear child, you are free—no personality has any power over us unless we choose to let them have it. You are a free will and always decide; according to your own judgment, so your affairs shape themselves. When we follow the dictates of our heart, balanced by our good judgment, we do not go astray and are always doing that which is the good for all, which is really what we al want. If you follow this guidance of Infinite Wisdom, your friend will be benefitted as well as yourself. He may not be able to see it so now, because he's still dreaming, but when he fully awakes, he'll rejoice that in freeing you he has freed himself.—"Mother."

Dear Mary Gordon: I want to say a word to the "Dream Girl." You are very foolish to marry a man almost old enough to be your father. It means your own class of young people will drop you, and his friends will not care to include in their social circle his crude child wife. So it means you will have to sit in the corner alone with your old man, blotting out your young life and all you would like to enjoy as a young woman.

And the professor is simply cutting his own throat. He is taking his love affair, as they used to get religion at the old-fashioned camp meeting, by dreaming dreams and guided by his feelings.

You better never see the old man again, and go out and find a young man of your class and age and marry the young man and be happy, as it will be impossible for you to find happiness with the old man.—C. E.

A. I doubt if "Dream Girl" herself realizes what a powerful web has been woven about her. Being young, she cannot realize how potent a factor in married happiness congeniality is.

Dear Mary Gordon: With the few wintry days we had during the first part of September, thoughts just flew to Christmas and the problem of Christmas presents. It is not one bit too early to begin to plan, especially if one must consider economy, and there are only a select few who do not.

Last Christmas to quite a few of my friends, I gave percale aprons made of the light figured material and edged with imitation tatting edges. They were made entirely by hand and by a well fitting all-over pattern. At last I seemed to have struck on a popular gift for my married friends, for I have never received more genuine thanks for my gifts. Occasionally, therefore, I have been buying pretty percales and edgings as I would happen on them in the stores thruout the year.

Handkerchiefs are always an old standby in the way of gifts, and handmade ones are genuinely appreciated. It is a rather good idea to buy plain hemstitched linen ones and at odd moments embroider a dainty wreath of roses or clusters of them in one corner. It adds so much to the gift—the personal bit of work.

Sealing wax has assumed an important part in the manner of decorations, for so many dainty things can be made with it. Especially appropriate for Christmas presents are the attractive pendants which are so easily made with a little practice, and ornaments of this sort always add a delightful touch to a costume and so are very welcome. Pins, beads and earrings are also easily made.

Work baskets and bags of straw or reed are also useful gifts and with the addition of some colored yarns they become more than just commonplace.

There are so many useful gifts to give to friends and with just a little forethought and care it is not so hard to think of things that will please. Most of us do not start thinking about Christmas soon enough which is the reason that at the last moment we rush to town amid the holiday crowds and buy some unsuitable and ill chosen gift for the forgotten friend. So, start thinking early as well as start shopping early.—Mrs. H.

A. It is not too early to begin thinking of Christmas.

Preventing Steamy Glasses.

It is always annoying when at the last moment one is in a hurry to take up a meal or coming from out-of-doors into a warmer temperature, to find the lenses of one's glasses suddenly clouded with steam.

Prevent this by washing the glasses perfectly clean. Dry them on a soft cloth, and then rub with a cloth which has been moistened with a very small amount of paraffin oil. All that is needed is the thinnest film to coat the surface, yet not enough to attract dust. This coating prevents the moisture touching the glass. It is convenient to have a cloth ready prepared. The same plan is excellent to keep the windshield of the automobile clear in damp weather.

DUCHESS TO DROP APPEAL.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The duchess of Westminster will drop her appeal against the dismissal of her application for an injunction restraining the duke from ejecting her from his house in Dourdon, society was saying today. It was reported the duchess had accepted her husband's offer of a suite at the Claridge.

The parridge is said to be the shyest and wildest of American birds.

INSANITY IS HIS DEFENSE

WARREN LINCOLN IS PLEADING NOT GUILTY.

Man Who Once Confessed Murdering Wife and Brother-in-Law to Make Fight For Life.

GENEVA, Ill., Oct. 6.—Claiming legal insanity, Warren J. Lincoln, lawyer, horticulturist, and distant kinsman of Abraham Lincoln, went to trial here today on a charge of murdering his wife and his brother-in-law, Byron Shoup, in April, 1923.

Despite the fact he once admitted the double slaying and led police to a cement block in which the hads of his victims were entombed, Lincoln entered a plea of not guilty and based his defense on arguments that he is insane.

Dr. Harold S. Hulbert, one of the alienists who testified that Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb were "mentally ill" in the famous Chicago trial, is the chief medical expert retained by Lincoln's attorneys. Hulbert, it is said, will testify that Lincoln was of unsound mind when the murders were perpetrated.

Soon after Mrs. Lincoln and her brother disappeared, Lincoln himself vanished, leaving behind him a trail of blood, and other evidence indicating he had been murdered. When he was found several months later in Chicago, he told a story of being kidnaped by his wife and Shoup.

Soon after this he was taken into custody and held for the murders and later admitted both crimes. He led officers to a dumping ground and pointed out a concrete block in which were found the well preserved heads of his victims. The torsoes had been burned.

Lincoln gave several reasons for his crime, the chief one being that his brother-in-law interfered when he reprimanded his wife for alleged misconduct and that he killed them both in self-defense.

The defendant was once an attorney but shortly before the crime gave up his practice to devote his time to horticulture. He was an expert gardener and florist. Neighbors said they always considered him eccentric. He traces his relationship thru several generations of Illinois Lincolns to the martyr president.

The first task for the jury will be to determine the mental condition of Lincoln. If found insane, he probably will be confined to the state hospital for the criminal insane. If found sane, State's Attorney Charles Abbott will demand the death penalty.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

The Church of Christ, scientist, filed articles of incorporation with the county clerk. August Hagenow was president, Mrs. Emma Hagenow, secretary, William M. Leonard treasurer, S. Y. Ogen and Mrs. Hettie Ogden readers.

The question of whether public fire alarms should be sounded was being discussed in the Journal.

Anson D. Ireland, a traveling man of Minneapolis and a cousin of W. T. Ireland of Lincoln, died at the Lindell hotel.

Interest in the coming coursing meet at Friend was on the boom in Lincoln, and several local people were going to see the sport so popular in England.

The growth of long distance telephone lines in Nebraska in the few years just preceding this date had been phenomenal. The Nebraska telephone company had added hundreds of miles to its lines and smaller corporations were engaged in running wires in many parts of the state. It was predicted that rural residents would soon be wanting telephones.

Rheumatism

"Yes! it's all gone."

DO NOT close your eyes and think that health, free motion and strength are gone from you forever! It is not so. You can get rid of your rheumatism by building up your blood power. It is a fact that rheumatism means "blood poverty." It is a fact with the increase of red cells in your blood, impurities are destroyed. It is a fact that S.S.S. will help Nature build these red-blood-cells! S.S.S. is one of the most powerful blood cleansers in existence. Its results in thousands of rheumatic cases have been nothing short of amazing! The medicinal ingredients of S.S.S. are purely vegetable. This is very important to remember! What can be more inspiring, more wonderful than to see the shackles of pain released from your struggling body, swellings, lingering pains, stiffness of joints and muscles all disappear; your stomach made strong; your face pink with the old sweetheart glow, your blood enriched and your cheeks more plump as they used to be. You can do it! Take S.S.S., the great destroyer of rheumatic impurities.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Good Night Stories

BETTY CHANGES HER MIND.

"OH dear," Betty growled when her mother sent her away from the breakfast table to comb her hair. "I can't see why my hair has to get mussed up this way every night. It's just full of snarls.

"I wish I lived somewhere, where folks didn't have to comb their hair so often. I just despise to——," and Betty pulled the comb through her tangles and fairly danced because it hurt. "Goodness I almost wish I didn't have any——"

"Wait-a-second, wait-a-second," laughed a cheery voice and down in front of Betty tumbled a queer little elfin all rolled up like a ball. When he unrolled Betty laughed.

"Why, Gocomeback, where in the world did you come from?" she laughed. "I didn't know you were in here."

"Neither did I until I heard you about to make a silly wish," the elfin laughed merrily. "My, how you would have regretted that wish. Don't ever wish you didn't have any hair. Come along and I'll show you a little girl who never gets her hair mussed."

"I'd sure like to see a girl like that," Betty laughed, but by that time she found herself standing in a queer little town. "Where are we, anyway?" she asked when she could get her breath, they had traveled so swiftly.

"In Japan," replied Gocomeback. "I just want you to see Too-tu-san. Here she comes now. Look at her hair and ask her when she combed it last. You won't believe her I know."

"Hello there, Too-tu-san, this is Betty Bly from North America. I wonder if you couldn't tell her how you keep your hair from getting mussed at night?"

"Indeed I can," laughed the little yellow girl with the slanting black eyes. "Come right into the house and I'll tell you my secret," and she led Gocomeback and Betty into the pretty house and showed Betty a funny block of wood.

"Where Did You Come From?"

"If you get a pillow like that to sleep on you'll never muss your hair," she laughed merrily. "You American's want things too soft, I think."

"You mean to say you put your head on that ugly hard block of wood every night?" Betty asked getting down on the floor and placing her head on the wooden pillow.

"My, goodness! I do believe I'd rather comb out the tangles every morning even if it does hurt, than punish myself like that, why——"

"You comb your hair every morning?" asked Too-tu-san, her eyes sparkling. "My goodness, my hair would never stand that much combing. You see mother has a comber (I guess you'd call him a barber in America) come in about once a week and comb our hair. You see with a pillow like that my hair doesn't muss."

"You may have your hard wood pillow," laughed Betty and like a puff of smoke Japan and Too-tu-san disappeared and Betty found herself once more back in good old America in her own room.

Without a word she combed out every tangle and that was the last time she was ever sent away from the table to comb her hair.

A WIFE'S CONFESSIONAL

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Surprising Suggestion Dicky Made to Madge.

"I REALIZE one thing," said Dicky significantly, as I finished my little lecture concerning his lack of patience with his mother's most recent tantrum.

I flushed with pleasure even before he explained his meaning, for his tone was one he never uses unless he is saying something rarely sweet to me, something I can treasure and tuck away in my casket.

"That is, you're the bulliest little scout in two hemispheres," he elucidated extravagantly. "Mother walks all over your frame nine or ten times a week—oh, yes, I know I do the same thing!—but you were fool enough to marry me," he grinned provokingly, "so you have to take your medicine. But you didn't contract to marry mother, and I'm here to tell the world that you're about the best daughter-in-law who ever entered for the sweepstakes. Mother knows it, too, don't you make any mistake about that!" he exclaimed. "She may have had more bossing to do at Harriet's, but she's a sight more comfortable here than she ever was there, and you're a hundred times more considerate of her whims than Harriet ever was. Harriet had Edwin on her mind and heart first, last and all the times in between, and everybody else took the crumbs. And as for Lisa—poor girl!—well!—you know—"

He stopped in remorseful embarrassment, and I nodded my head in sober assent. I knew that my mother-in-law sincerely mourned for her daughter, Elizabeth Harrison, so tragically killed in a motor accident but a few short months before. I knew also, however, that never had Mother Graham been happy or even comfortable in the home of that daughter, so sadly different from the rest of her family that even her children were better off with their uncle and aunt, Dr. Edwin Braithwaite and his wife, Harriet, than they had been when in her care.

"Pin Back Your Ears!"

"Yes, I know," I answered, "and I know something else also—that you are a dear to say what you have—I don't deserve it, I am afraid, but it all doesn't alter my belief that your mother is unusually nervous, even for her, and that everybody ought——"

"Stop right there," Dicky said authoritatively, "and come over here while you listen to words of wisdom from your spouse."

He drew me with him to an immense armchair perfectly capable of holding two persons of ordinary size, sat down and fenced me in beside him with both arms.

"Now you can't get away, no matter how mad you get 'by me,'" he said quizzically, "so you'd better pin back your ears and listen."

He gave me no opportunity to reply, but hurried on in a fashion which made me suspect that he was a bit doubtful or embarrassed concerning the things he meant to tell me.

Madge's Unexpected Reply.

"In the first place," he said, "your theory is the wrong one. Everyone ought not to cater to mother—she's being humored more than is good for her as it is. But she ought to have a rest from us—there's no doubt about that. In fact—don't you think it's about time we all took a rest from each other for a little while?"

I suppose my face reflected not only my astonishment, but the sudden poignant worry that was mine as to his possible meaning, for he laughed outright, and tightened the clasp of his arm around me.

"Oh, I'm not contemplating a trip to Reno while I send you to Paris!" he gibed. "But you know as well as I do that we as a family have spent a fairly monotonous Summer, with only ourselves—for old Lil and Marion are part of the family—as company. If we all aren't on each other's nerves already, it's only a question of days when we will get there. What's the answer? Judicious absence from each other, carefully graded to fit the needs of the different cases. Mother ought to get away for several months, while you and I——" he paused teasingly—"well, a week or two ought to make our 'hearts grow fonder'—don't you think?"

"Two might do it," I said demurely, determined that he should not guess how dismayed I was at this indication of restlessness in my Peter Pan.

"Oh! They might, eh?" he retorted, and my pulses beat more quickly at the distinct note of pique in his voice. That he had not expected me to agree with him so promptly I knew as well as I did that apparent indifference concerning his proposed absence was my best weapon against his instability.

THE HOME KITCHEN

Four Unusual Ways to Serve Grapefruit, Oranges and Lemons

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON
The Authority on Home Cooking

THE modern recognition of the health giving qualities of the citrus fruits, makes the opening of their prime season in the northern markets an event to look forward to. The season formally opens around the first of November and lasts until May, though there is hardly a month in the year when these fruits are not obtainable.

We are all familiar with grapefruit and oranges in cocktails, halved and served as appetizers, canapes, salads and frozen, but we are not so familiar with their use as cooked dainties. The following recipes will show just how they may be used to the best advantage. Fruit juice as a healthful drink is too well known to need any added praise.

Orange Layer Cake.

Grate the rind of one orange into two cupfuls of sugar and work to a cream with three quarters of a cupful of butter. Beat in the yolks of four eggs, then work in four small cupfuls of sifted pastry flour and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a heaping saltspoonful of salt and the same of bicarbonate of soda. Stir in three quarters of a cupful of strained orange juice and a quarter cupful of water. Stir until very smooth and light, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Divide in layer pans and bake as usual. Add a little yellow coloring matter to the icing and make the frosting soft and creamy.

Lemon Souffle.

Put the yolks of six fresh eggs and two ounces of sugar into a shallow pan. Heat thoroughly beating constantly with an egg beater, but do not allow it to boil. Stir in the strained juice of three lemons and the grated peel of one. Soak half an ounce of gelatine powder in a cupful of cold water, then set it on the fire and allow the water to heat enough to melt the gelatine. Strain into a half pint of heavy cream, whipped dry, mix with the eggs and turn into a dish to chill. Garnish with strips of angelica and candied cherries.

Grapefruit Pie.

Remove all skin and seeds from two large grapefruit and set to drain. Line the pie plate with rich short crust. Peel and chop two tart apples fine. Fill the pie with grapefruit and the apple, add a cupful of sugar with a heaping teaspoonful of cornstarch and a tablespoonful of flour stirred through it. Pour in the drained grapefruit juice and the juice of an orange, add the top crust and bake as usual.

Grapefruit Blanc Mange.

Mix six tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with six tablespoonfuls of water. Mix well, then add a cupful and a half of boiling water, bring to boiling point and cook until clear. Mix three quarters of a cupful of grapefruit juice with three quarters of a cupful of sugar and a saltspoonful of salt. Cook all together one minute, then pour onto the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs, beating constantly. Turn into a wet mould and set to stiffen and chill. Serve with custard sauce or any pudding sauce flavored with orange or lemon juice.

CUPID certainly must have had something to do with the invention of the radio set, because when one is in love, no matter what one may draw from the ether the transformers invariably manage to convert the dulcet tones of the unknown singer into a perfect picture of the one who fills the heart. And what joy, what happiness, may be derived in the still hours of the night from tuning-in to any old station and transforming the unknown to the real, the true love song of one's beloved, that fills the heart with untold happiness and contentment!

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Contentment

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

THE little girl went out for a visit the other night.

The little girl doesn't go out for evening visits very often.

You see, she's a very little girl indeed, and she has to keep her cheeks pink and her eyes bright and her disposition sweet, so she snuggles into bed nice and early and skips out of that bed bright and early the next morning as brand-new as the day.

She was a good deal excited about going out when all the lights were lit and people were going up and down the street, and all the motor cars had wonderful lights on them like great eyes and everybody seemed to be so dressed up—why, it was quite a different world!

The little girl thought she wished she hadn't been so long finding out about it.

When she first arrived at the place where she was going to spend the evening she was delighted. Everybody said nice things about her pretty little blue frock and her charming little blue shoes and the soft halo of her silky hair. Some even mentioned her eyes, and there were those who were not indifferent to her dimples.

A Much Longer Word

And there was a man there who told stories, lovely stories, with fairies and godmothers and little dogs that talked just as if they were little boys or girls. And there was a woman there who sang funny little songs all about Bo-Peep and the sheep that she thought she'd lost—but she hadn't, and Little Jack Horner and how clever he was to find the plum—oh, yes, it was quite a gay night in the little girl's short life!

But when some one turned on the radio—it wasn't so nice.

Somebody was making a speech, a great, long speech about nothing of the least importance, and then people played on violins, a good many of them together, and there was no tune to the music they made, and altogether the little girl felt that the radio was a good deal of a bore.

"Let's turn it off," she said to the man who told stories, and then everybody laughed, and some one said:

"Don't you like the radio, little girl?" and the little girl said:

"No."

And then some one else said:

"Have you a radio at home, my dear?"

The little girl sat up very straight and threw back her chubby little shoulders.

"No," she said, "but I have a radiator," and she couldn't for the life of her see why everybody laughed.

It was quite true what she said. She did have a radiator at home, and radiator was a good deal longer word than radio, and why shouldn't she speak about it?

She's wondering yet where the joke came in.

There's one thing I'm not wondering about, and that thing is the little girl and the sort of life she's going to have.

Contentment—what a gift it is!

Of all the treasures that can be showered upon you by a fairy godmother, give me, oh, Giver of All Good, contentment!

Envy Never Touches Her

The little girl doesn't know what it is to be envious. She doesn't know what it is to be discontented. What she has in her home is hers and she loves it and doesn't want anything that anybody else has in any other home anywhere on earth. Her mother is the sweetest mother in the world, her daddy is the darlingest daddy, her doll is the prettiest doll, her little new frock is the nicest—bless her heart, she'll never be green eyed, whatever else she is!

And she can take care of herself, too, mark that.

No one is going to get ahead of her with a radio or anything else—not so long as she has a radiator to match against them.

Here's looking at you, little girl—a long life and a joyous one! You've got the pattern cut out all right.

I don't believe any one can stop you from making it into a seemly and becoming garment.

Beauty Ways to Keep Your Teeth Lovely

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

BEAUTIFUL teeth are quite as much to be desired as a beautiful mouth. In fact, if I had to choose between the two I should insist upon beautiful teeth, for good teeth go far in their effect upon general health and beauty.

No matter how rosy and smooth and soft the lips may be, much of this is discounted if they part in a smile to reveal teeth that are ugly and discolored. And if the teeth are misshapen, the mouth cannot very well be beautiful in outline, for teeth have everything to do with the shape of the mouth.

For this reason, no woman, young or old, should object to wearing a brace for her teeth if her dentist advises it. A brace is unattractive enough for the time being, but it can readjust a malformation of the teeth which means everything to the shape of your mouth for the rest of your life. Remember this, too, in the care of your children. Of course the proper time to wear a brace is when the teeth are young and more easily pushed into place.

Now in the systematic care of your teeth, there are four things which are vitally necessary. The proper tooth brush and mouth bath, the proper paste or powder and the proper diet must be attended to if you wish your teeth to have every beauty chance.

Every woman should visit her dentist about every three months. This will save trouble and expense in the long run, for if you follow this practice, the dentist will probably be able to dismiss you on some of your visits with the information that your teeth are perfectly sound. On the other hand a decaying place that is neglected can stack up trouble for the future.

Use a small tooth brush that fits into the corners of your mouth and allows you to reach every side of every tooth. This is very important.

There are any number of good, simple, inexpensive mouth washes on the market. You may prefer to buy one that a reliable druggist recommends, or you may prefer to make your own. Here is an excellent one:

Tincture of orris root	8 drams
Spirit of rose	8 fluid drams
Alcohol (65%)	8 fluid drams

Keep this handy and use it after meals or whenever you feel that your mouth needs refreshing.

An excellent tooth powder is made from:

Camphor gum	1 ounce
Precipitated chalk	5 ounces
Pulverized orris root	3 ounces

As to the proper diet, the best general rules for teeth-beauty are to avoid things that are very hot or very cold, very sweet or very sour. Foods that contain much lime are very strengthening to the teeth. Gluten and whole wheat bread instead of white bread and cake are excellent.

Advice to Girls — By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

1.—When out to dance or the theatre who should suggest coming home first?

2.—When a man asks you for a date should the girl or the young man suggest where to go?

3.—If your young man friend lives in another town is it correct for the girl to ask him for dinner or stay all night if the parents approve? Or should they ask him?

4.—Is it all right to give your picture to young men?

THANK YOU.

1.—The young man usually waits until the girl suggests going home.

2.—Unless the young man wants to take you to some definite dance or party, he asks the girl where she wants to go.

3.—It is quite correct to ask the young man to dinner but it is the place of your parents to ask him to stay over night.

4.—It is inadvisable to give your picture to a man unless you are engaged to him. It often leads to complications.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am eighteen years old and have been engaged three times. I am now engaged to a young man twenty-one years old. He is exceedingly handsome and is conscious of it. All the girls are crazy about him and he is not above flirting with them and taking one out sometimes. He says he does not believe in "steady stuff." He does not trust me on account of my other engagements, the last one of which I broke just for him. He does not care if I go out for rides with other young men, but I don't go because I want to be true to him. He does not appreciate my efforts but thinks it is a great joke. I love him too dearly to lose him, but am afraid I can't hold him. Being true to him has no effect at all. Oh, Annie Laurie, what shall I do? I can't lose him and I can't keep him. Do you think that if I flirted outrageously with everyone else it would make him desire me more? Don't tell me to give him up, as I love him more than life itself, though I know he is unworthy.

DADDY'S DARLING.

DADDY'S DARLING: My dear child, you must pull yourself together and try to see things as they really are. I don't want to hurt your feelings, but I must tell you frankly that I think your fiance is a cad. As your fiance he has no right to go out with other girls and the fact that he encourages you to go with other men, shows that he has not the proper feeling for you. A man of his type, conceited and selfish, is not worthwhile holding; the sooner you break with him the better. Don't be foolish and think that you cannot live without him. There is no one in this world whom we cannot live without, if we have sufficient courage. You are still young and have much happiness still awaiting you.

YOUR HEALTH

Beware the Danger of Dilatation of Stomach

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND.

THERE are as many stomachs, in size and shape, as there are persons in the world. The average capacity varies from three to five pints.

Some folks appear to have very small stomachs. A little food fills them up and it is impossible to eat a decent quantity of food.

There are certain conditions which reduce the capacity of this organ. There is one serious trouble that results in stretching of the walls of the organ with a marked increase in capacity.

This condition is known as "dilatation of the stomach." It may be acute, coming on with amazing suddenness. In the chronic form, the dilatation is gradual in its progress.

It is not to be expected that a healthy individual, possessing a good heart and good circulation and practicing right living, will have such a disagreeable ailment. There must be some reason for weakness and loss of elasticity of the walls of the stomach. Otherwise no such disaster could occur.

Over-eating, day after day, and habitual drinking to excess, may cause daily stretching of the stomach walls. In time they lose their elasticity, just as a rubber band can be stretched until it loses its natural power.

Beer drinkers are liable to dilatation. So are diabetics. You can see why. In diabetics there is excessive thirst and constant drinking of water. In consequence the stomach walls lose their tone.

Rickety children and undernourished persons are liable to attacks of this nature. Middle-aged people or those run-down in health, are subject to dilatation.

When there are ulcers of the stomach at the exit so that passage of the food from the organ is interfered with, there may be gradual stretching of the stomach walls. One case is recorded where the capacity was increased to 70 pints!

The victim may have all the common symptoms of dyspepsia. The most marked symptom is vomiting of enormous quantities of material.

One of the important steps in treatment is washing out the stomach. It is essential to stop fermentation. Thorough cleaning has a remarkable effect and hastens the cure.

Simple food and correct habits in eating and drinking are essential.

Answers to Health Questions

C. C. M. Q.—What is the correct weight of a girl, twenty years of age, height five feet, three inches?

2.—Is rye bread fattening?

A.—About one hundred and twenty-two pounds is your correct weight.

2.—Almost any bread taken in large quantities is fattening.

* * *

K. A. H. Q.—My baby of a year and a half is constantly sucking his lower lip, what do you advise?

A.—Nothing much can be done for this excepting to watch him and force him to stop when he begins to do it.

* * *

F. D. Q.—My little six-year-old girl has a slight enlargement in her throat. Could this be due to severe coughing since she had an attack of whooping cough last Winter? Is a goitre due to strain or a lack of something in the system?

A.—The trouble might be due to strained muscles or ligaments, but it would be wise to have your doctor examine her and determine just what is causing the condition. Goitre is caused by over-secretion or improper functioning of the thyroid gland. The treatment depends to a great extent upon the seriousness of the trouble in each individual case.

* * *

H. M. W. Q.—About an hour after I eat my mid-day meal I get so drowsy and sleepy it seems almost impossible for me to stay awake. If I lie down I do not care to sleep. What causes this condition?

A.—These symptoms are probably due to over-eating. Try limiting your luncheon.

* * *

LAVINIA. Q.—What is good for oily hair?

2.—Is the daily use of an electric vibrator for the scalp injurious?

A.—For full particulars kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—Not unless done to excess. Twice a week should be sufficient, however.

* * *

HELEN P. Q.—How can I remove freckles from my face?

A.—Equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide applied to the face, every night, will help to make the freckles less noticeable.

* * *

M. W. Q.—I am 14 years of age, five feet five inches tall. What should I weigh?

2.—When will I stop growing taller?

A.—You should weigh about 129 pounds.

2.—This would be rather difficult to determine. However, some persons have their full growth at fourteen or fifteen years of age.

* * *

MRS. R. G. D. Q.—What is the cause of water on the brain? How can it be cured?

A.—These symptoms are due to excessive secretion of the cerebro-spinal fluid. As yet, there is no cure for this condition.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 7

Judging by this day's lunar trasits, there may be conflicting experiences, with some benefits and some anxieties. But on the whole, the outlook may be deemed fortunate. Those in the employment of others are in line for recognition or promotion, if undeniably qualified. The health should be given proper attention and all should be on guard against treachery and false friends. With sufficient attention and good management, matters should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of some anxieties, but generally, with proper attention and good management, they should flourish. The health should be attended to and all may well be on guard against treachery and betrayal. A child born on this day may make its best success by being kept in the employment of others and not allowed to assume responsibilities on its own account.

STATE FUND NOT LIABLE

JUDGE BARRON SO HOLDS BUT CLAIMANT TAKES APPEAL.

Surety Company That Made Good Excess Deposits of County Treasurer Now Seeking Recovery.

The National Surety company of New York lodged an appeal Monday with the supreme court in two cases from Scottbluff county where Judge Barron held it had no claim upon the deposit guaranty fund. The company gave bonds in the sum of $10,000, running to the county, for the security of excess deposits placed in the State bank of Gering and the Farmers' bank at Morrill, both of which were later closed. It paid the county, on these bonds, a total of $1,378.96, and then asked to be reimbursed out of the guaranty fund.

The contention of the representatives of the state is that the bond was made for the express purpose of covering excess deposits contrary to law, and that the company induced the treasurer to commit an illegal act. If it had not furnished the bond, it was claimed, the money would not have been deposited and lost.

The state also contends that the company is in the business of issuing bonds and that it incurs a risk for which it asked and received payment in the form of premium. The judge below said all that he could do was to allow the mas claims against the bank, but that the guaranty fund is not liable.

The company is relying upon the fact that since the litigation began the supreme court has passed upon the legality of the acts of county treasurers in depositing more than the half of the bank's capital stock and surplus, which was the measure under the law before deposits were guaranteed. After once deciding that the old law applied, the court filed another decree saying that the old law was repealed by implication when the new one was passed, and that as it guaranteed all deposits the fund was liable for all money actually deposited.

FINAN BACK IN OMAHA

Man Who Confessed to Killing of W. E. Smith, Repeats His Confession.

OMAHA, Oct. 6.—Clyde Finan, who on the eve of his release from Oklahoma penitentiary confessed to the killing of W. E. Smith in South Omaha in September, 1921, was returned to Omaha today and reiterated his confession.

Finan said he, Roy Asher and Bud Clark had heard that Smith always carried large sums of money on his person. They planned to hold him up, Clark to place a pistol at his head while the other two rifled his pockets. At the last moment Clark lost his nerve and Finan said he struck Smith over the head with an iron bar.

They then debated on what to do with Smith. Ashur was in favor of tying him to the rails and letting a train run over him. They finally decided to bury him alive. Finan said Smith died from suffocation caused by the dirt they piled on his body.

Asher and Clark were captured. Asher turned state's evidence on Clark and was himself freed only to die later in Kansas penitentiary. Clark was tried and acquitted.

First degree murder charges will be preferred against Finan. Officers are searching for Clark. They believe with the confession of Finan they can convict both men of the murder.

Tells of Observations in Europe —Rev. A. R. Achtemeier is Elected Secretary of Lincoln Association.

Rev. A. R. Achtemeier, pastor of St. Mark's church, was elected secretary of the ministerial association at the meeting Monday morning, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the Rev. Samuel Buechner, whose new duties as district superintendent will prevent his being present at Monday sessions. Rev. A. A. Brooks of Trinity Methodist is moderator for the year.

Announcement was made that Miss Grace Abbott of Washington, D. C., an authority on child welfare work, had been asked to address the ministers at the next meeting. Miss Abbott's home was formerly at Grand Island.

A visitor from Wisconsin, Rev. Mr. Smith, was granted five minutes in which to explain his conviction that religion and science are identical when rightly interpreted.

Dr. Walter Aitken, pastor of St. Paul church, read a paper on "Europe With the Fellowship Party." Dr. Aitken explained that the aim of the fellowship party under the direction of Sherwood Eddy was to study social, economic and international questions. Among the industrial plants visited and studied was one at York, England, employing 7,000 workers. Dr. Aitken said the relations of employer and employes in that plant were more nearly based on the Golden Rule than anything he had seen. The proprietor told him that a minimum wage for a man of normal ability was a necessity for the maintenance of right relations.

Seven members of the British cabinet, besides other men of prominence addressed the party. Lord Astor, who has been working to abolish liquor in England, told Dr. Aitken that Great Britain does not progress so fast as the United States and is not yet ready for prohibition. Drunkenness there was declared to be greater last year than before the war in 1918.

RAILWAY TO THE SOVIET

CHINESE EASTERN ROAD DELIVERED TO RUSSIA.

Action Believed to Be Agreement Between Moscow and Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian War Lord.

(Copyright, 1924, by United Press.)

MOSCOW, Oct. 6.—The entire administration of the Chinese eastern railway was delivered to the Russian government in Mukden October 4, the United Press learned today.

Delivery of the railway, it was believed in some circles here, constitutes a virtual agreement between the Russian government and Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord who now is attempting to oust the central Chinese government from Peking.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Heavy fighting north of Shan Hai Kwan in which Marshal Chang Tso Lin's Manchurian army has driven back Gen. Wu Pei Fu's troops sixteen miles, is reported by the Daily Mail's Mukden correspondent. One of Chang's sections met success in the center of the opposing line and another carried out a flank movement, the report said.

Thousands of wounded are passing thru Ching Wann Tao.

All the native newspapers published in northern China have been closed down, the correspondent says, adding that two editors have been shot down in Peking for publishing news of Wu's defeat.

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 6.—Additional American sailors were landed here today to protect American property and nationals as Fukien troops attacking Shanghai from the south resumed their encircling drive on the city.

The Fukien attack was over a wide front and followed the general encircling movement started last week. It obviously is designed to capture first the great arsenal from which General Lu Yung Hsiang's defending Chekiang troops are drawing most of their supplies.

Fukien headquarters claimed many of General Lu's troops have not been paid for weeks and said they were deserting in great numbers.

A squadron of American marines which has been on guard duty here returned to the cruiser Huron today.

DEMANDS DAWES RESIGN

Brookhart in Three Week-end Addresses Renews His Attack On Running Mate.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 6.—Smith W. Brookhart, addressing three different audences over the week end demanded each time that Charles G. Dawes resign as the republican vice presidential nominee.

He also made the prediction that LaFollette would carry Iowa by 150,000 votes if President Coolidge refused to "get on" Secretary Wallace's platform for agricultural relief.

Brookhart spoke Saturday afternoon at Arcadia and in the evening at Perry. Sunday evening he spoke at Zearing, Ia. He used practically the same text in all three addresses.

Brookhart jokingly referred to the action of the republican state central committee which declared him a "bolter," saying "I kicked that bunch out two years ago."

He reviewed the policies of the administration and his own record, and wound up his Perry address with the slam that "This is one day I haven't heard anything from Peewit Dawes."

Brookhart speaks tonight at Melbourne, Ia.

SUPREME COURT CONVENES.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The supreme court of the United States, whose power is one of the foremost issues in the presidential campaign, convened today for its 1924 term with an important limitation of the power of congress the principal question now before it for decision. At the very time a major political movement is under way to curb thep resent constitutional authority of the court, it is called upon to determine just what authority the congress has to inquire into the affairs of private citizens. A whole group of cases ranging from the refusal of Harry F. Sinclair to testify before the Teapot Dome investigating committee to the refusal of steel companies to furnish the federal trade commission with production costs has brought this question squarely before the court.

DALTON TO THROW ASIDE WIG

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—Bill Dalton is quitting the stage. Bill Dalton is none other than Julian Eltinge, the world's most famous female impersonator. "The most beautiful woman in the world is a man," a New York critic once wrote of Eltinge. If this is true, the ranks of the beautiful are soon to be void of their most charming member, for "she" is to soon put on trousers for ever, and become plain Bill Dalton again. He will remove his Parisian gowns for the last time and, throwing his wigs and makeup into the discard, retire to his 160 acre ranch down in San Diego county, where, atop a high mountain overlooking Imperial valley, he will be Bill Dalton proprietor and manager of a resort hotel already under construction.

EQUAL PAY FOR EQUAL WORK.

NEW YORK, (By Mail).—All secondary school teachers in the state of New York are subject to the principle of "equal pay for equal work," by the terms of a law passed by the legislature for 1924. Two other states prohibit discrimination between men and women teachers in the matter of salary.

The Lapels Of A Prince

In this country, lacking great dandies or high-born personages to launch a fashion, it is difficult for some men to understand the influence that the Prince of Wales exercises upon the styles of England —"such divinity doth hedge a (future) king." Not because he is of royal blood does the youthful Wales dictate the modes, but because he has a keenly developed style sense and because he is farseeing enough to recognize that there could be no better advertisement than a Prince for English woolens and English fashions.

The Prince of Wales and his closest friend, the Duke of Westmorland, are untiring about introducing new styles. Naturally these are at once taken up by the best-turned-out Englishmen and, in time they find their way all over the globe, for the prestige of London as a centre of men's fashions is as undisputed as the place of Paris as the bourne of women's fashions. One who can make the civilized world dress with a sharper eye upon style and taste and individual becomingness has surely performed no inconsiderable service in behalf of the social and cultural graces. He has made Princes practical, instead of ornamental, just as his grandfather, King Edward, The Seventh, did.

The 2-button lounge suit, pictured in the accompanying sketch, shows the type of lapels to which the Prince of Wales is very partial, especially on the cutaway coat. In England these are termed D. B. lapels. The 3-button coat, another favorite this autumn, carries the same sort of lapels. This coat is slightly fitted to the figure and is sharply rounded off in front. The back is free-draped and ventless. The waistcoat may be a trifle exposed above the coat opening. The pockets are flapped.

The hat is the black derby to which the prince has given a revival vogue for day wear. The collar is the double band, square-cornered shape. The cravat has a pattern formed by bright regimental stripes. The handkerchief is white, but vivid colors are just as correct and more youthful. Often, a different-material waistcoat is worn, such as white, cream, lavender, tan or gray.

DIGNITARIES HERE FOR MISSION MEET

Methodist Bishops on Program of Missionary Convention at Trinity Church, Thursday to Sunday.

Trinity Methodist church will be host to some high officials of Methodism this week, in addition to a number of missionaries and members of the foreign missionary society, the occasion being the forty-first annual meeting of the society's Topeka branch. Six hundred delegates are expected besides many other persons interested in the work. The branch comprises eleven middle western states.

Bishop Frederick T. Keeney of Omaha will speak Friday afternoon on "China's Call," and will occupy Trinity pulpit Sunday morning. The bishop spent four years in southern China, previous to being assigned to the Omaha area last May.

Bishop C. L. Mead of Denver is to speak Friday evening and preach at St. Paul church Sunday morning, besides conducting a consecration service Saturday morning. Bishop B. T. Badley, who was born in India and has devoted most of his life to that field, speaks Saturday evening on "The Saffron Robe" and preaches Sunday morning and evening.

Other speakers will include Rev. E. Stanley Jones, for eighteen years a missionary in the Indian field, who speaks at the young people's banquet Friday evening at St. Paul church as well as at the opening session Thursday morning. Mrs. Jones, who has charge of a boys' mission school, will speak Thursday afternoon on "Indian Side Lights."

Dr. Ida Belle Lewis, daughter of the late Bishop Lewis, is on Thursday evening's program for an address, "In Chinese Schools." Miss Lewis taught in a girls' school at Tien Tsin, and has since been made educational supervisor for all of China. She will return to that country next year as president of Hwa Nan college for women, in South China.

Among the Lincoln women prominent in the work of the society is Miss Ella M. Watson, who for twenty years has been corresponding secretary for the Topeka branch and has come to be known as "The Methodist stateswoman." In 1920 Miss Watson was sent on a two years survey of the work of the branch in foreign fields. She will speak Thursday afternoon and Saturday morning.

All railroads into Lincoln are granting reduced rates on the certificate plan, and these are available for those wishing to come to Lincoln at that time, it is announced.

NEW PLANS FOR CAMPFIRE

Swimming Pool at Camp and Overnight Hiking Camp Near Town Discussed by Council.

A swimming pool for Camp Kiwanis, and an overnight camp near Lincoln, were among the matters discussed at the monthly meeting of the Lincoln campfire council Monday at the chamber of commerce.

The pool is desirable, it is explained, because during the past two seasons, high water has interfered considerably with the water program at camp. The other project includes a small building, conveniently located, where the girls may spend the night after a hike from town.

The season's camp report showed the organization financially in the clear, with a small profit. Fifty-three campfire and eleven bluebird groups are functioning, and each has its guardian engaged or in prospect for the coming winter. The university now offers campfire training and gives credit to the student taking it, with the proviso that they spend a certain number of hours assisting in the campfire office.

MRS. JEPSEN GIVES FACTS TO PUBLIC

Following Attack of "Flu" Burlington Lady Despaired of Getting Well.

"I am feeling just fine and would not be without Tanlac in the house," so reads a recent communication from Mrs. Mads Jepsen, a charming resident of 1303 South 15th St., Burlington, Iowa.

"Following an attack of 'flu' four years ago, I remained so weak and nervous so long that I almost despaired of ever regaining my health and strength. My troubles were many, including indigestion, raging headaches and dizzy spells. I lost lots of weight and was actually too weak and nervous to help the children off to school in the mornings.

"As hopeless as my condition seemed, Tanlac soon made a vast difference in my feelings, so I stuck right to it until my troubles went away and left me feeling strong and well. My weight has increased from 120 to 169 lbs., and my complexion reflects the grand health I enjoy. I have only the highest praise for Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Huskers Journey Into Southland For Next Game

THREE CONFERENCE GAMES ON PROGRAM

First Test of Strength in Missouri Valley Next Saturday—Hutchison Out of Husker Lineup Some Time.

Next Saturday will bring to the surface the first test of Valley strength within the conference. The test against the Big Ten last Saturday was to the extreme liking of the followers in this section. Missouri won from Chicago and Nebraska gave Illini a bad sixty minutes on stadium field. Wisconsin beat Ames, 15 to 0.

The first Missouri Valley conference games of the season will be played this week. The top notcher finds Nebraska playing Oklahoma at Norman. Oklahoma lost to Central Teachers, 2 to 0, last Saturday -but that defeat doesn't mean anything to Husker coaches. There will be no let up in practice sessions here. Games for Valley teams Saturday follow:

Washington vs. Grinnell at Grinnell.
Kansas vs. Iowa State at Lawrence.
Oklahoma vs. Nebraska at Norman.
Missouri vs. Missouri Wesleyan at Columbia.
Drake vs. Knox college at Des Moines.
Kansas Aggies vs. Emporia Normal at Manhattan.

Next in importance is the Kansas-Ames game. The Jayhawkers got away to a bad start when Oklahoma A. & M. bumped them in the opening contest of the season, 3 to 0.

Pikers Meet Grinnell Eleven.

The other Valley contest is between Washington and Grinnell at Grinnell.

Those who saw the Cornhuskers in action against the Illini Saturday had a hard time believing the early accounts published regarding them. It was just as hard for those who have watched them in practice sessions every evening to believe it was the same team.

As an example of the raggedness of those practice days Coach Schulte offered to give the safeties catching punts a dollar for every one they caught if they would give him a dime for every one they missed. Had it been accepted, Schulte would have made money that evening. But Saturday was another day.

There were some ball-ups on signals, but when Bloodgood found himself with the ball when another back should have taken it he usually turned the misplay into a yard or two gain.

It was the combination of Britton and Grange that beat the Huskers at Urbana last year and they repeated again this season. It was done aloug different lines, however, as far as Grange was concerned. At Urbana he scored three touchdowns. This year, when his thrusts at the line failed, he began flipping forward passes and he was very successful as the statistics of the game show.

Th Nebraska players were hoping after last year's game that they would get one more chance at least at Grauge. They got, it and stopped him.

Did Not Get Mad.

There was one thing about the red-headed flash which won him favor among the Husker players.

Usually when a grid star of his magnitude finds the going too hard he gets mad and loses his head. Grange didn't do that. When he was held for no gain, as he was several times, or held for a few puny yards, he didn't get mad. He tried that much harder to gain on the next play. He seems to be a football player for whom coaches dream of and pray for.

The Illinois game was costly in one way. Harold Hutchinsou, regular center, sustained a broken collar bone just before the first half ended. This injury will keep him on the sideline s until the Notre Dame game at least and his father stated Sunday evening that Hutch might not be able to play in that.

Monday evening will no doubt find the Huskers getting a strenuous workout against the forward passing tactics of the Oklahoma Sooners. Owen Frank scouted the Oklahomans in their game at Norman Saturday. Inability to defend against the passes of the Illini brought out the need for much work on this phase of the game, especially in view of the Norman game. Ben Owen's teams are always well drilled in the overhead game and any team that has a set of passes which can be worked is mighty dangerous.

Zuppke In a Statement.

Bob Zuppke in a statement after the game here Saturday indicated a slight dissatisfaction with his eleven, but he clung to his original ideas about Nebraska. "My team looked soft and the interference would not run. Nebraska was just as good as I thought." Those are Zup's exact words, repeated to him once, to avoid all possibility of misquotation. He also said he wanted to continue relations with Nebraska as long as possible.

Coach Dawson was very much pleased with the showing of the Huskers. He stated after the game that "fight" was the quality which pulled the Huskers thru. "Our only regret is the loss of Hutchison," he said.

Fred Marberry Sets Record in Second Game of Series

Victories of Lincoln and Omaha Central Feature High School Tilts

Omaha Central's decisive victory over Beatrice and Lincoln high's easy win from the strong Kearney aggregation were the features of the high school football world last week. The Red and Black, with Frank Cornick in the leading role, disposed of the westerners by a 27 to 5 count while the Purple and White eleven bumped the Gage county outfit by a 26 to 0 score.

Omaha Central's veteran backfield, with Morrow, Egan, "Blue" Howell and Muxen carrying the ball, found little trouble skirting the Beatrice ends or smashing thru the Orange and Black's light line for long gains.

Cambridge high, by piling up a 108 to 0 score over Maxwell, presented a stonewall line as well as a great offensive team. North Platte took Chappell to count, 25 to 6, while Scottsbluff, another western contender, disposed of Morrill, 13 to 3.

Coach Schroeder's Ravenna youngsters out fought the Gibbon gridsters, 19 to 14, in a thrilling battle. Fremont's powerful bunch of huskies blanked Coach Hare's University Place team, 20 to 0, while Creighton Prep barely nosed out Plattsmouth high, 6 to 0.

Hartington held Norfolk to a 6 to 6 tie while Coach Prince's Alliance athletes had the long end of a 37 to 0 score with Chadron.

The Creighton Prep-Omaha Tech tilt heads the high school grid program this week. Coach Drummond's powerful team, already touted as championship timber, should have little trouble with the Young Bluejays who were forced to the limit to defeat Fred Rotherl's Plattsmouth outfit, 6 to 0 last week.

Coach Browne's Lincoln high squad will tackle Havelock in the first home battle of the season for the Red and Black. Hastings meets Superior, Fremont is at Grand Island, Beatrice collides with Tecumseh, while Nebraska City is host to South Omaha. The week's schedule:

GOLF LESSONS.

Should the "stiff left arm" rule be followed regardless of whether the player's swing is flat or upright? Or should the upright swinger bend the left arm?

Answered by

WILLIE OGG

The straight left arm should be used in both swings, but care should be taken not to have the arm too stiff at the top of the swing. With the wooden clubs relax just a trifle.

Many players are so built that it is impossible for them to take a full swing without bending the left arm. My advice to that class is be sure to keep the hands from coming in towards the shoulder; in other words, keep as big a space between the hands and shoulders as possible at the top of the swing.

SERIES GAMES ARE BACK TO NEW YORK

No Frenzied Giant Fans on Hand and Contrast Between Gotham and Capital Fandom is Marked.

BY FRANK GETTY.

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The world's series is back where it looks natural.

Ghosts of the goats that once roamed Coogan's Bluff were reincarnated into clamboring, butting, headlong, heedless fans today, struggling for a place in the bleachers—just as it all has happened for 'lo, these many years.

Some of these fans are in their senior year as world's series spectators, having spent their freshman, sophomore and junior years watching these same Giants in a family row, with the Yankees.

In On Last Few Series.

There's a tour year old baby boy in an apartment house over-looking the Polo grounds who has seen part of every series since 1921. He and the bleacher fans must furnish the counterpart of that home town enthusiasm which rocked the stands in Washington.

This enthusiasm may be part of the Washington fans, the whistles, yells, cheers, maledictions, handshaking and fist shaking was the grandest part of those first two games. It was like being at a college football game, with the home team six points behind and the ball on the visitors ten yard line.

When "Goose" Goslin, lanky Senator outfielder, lifted a fly into some temporary stands in right field for a technical home run Sunday, three Washington fans fell off the bleachers into the street. And fully 35,000 hearts fell farther than that when the Giants tied the score in the ninth.

Peck Redeems Himself.

Washington fans presented Roger Peckinpaugh with an automobile the first game and by this time they owe him at least two more and a Ford. Peck, who once flivvered away a game in the shadow of these same bluffs, making a costly error in the 1921 world's series that sent victory to the Giants, and the then Yankee shortstop to Washington, has come back as the hero of the present series.

Doubles in the ninth are Mr. Peckinpaugh's speciality. In the first game he tied the score with a ringing double and the second he won in this way.

The series has developed other heroes besides Peck, however. Young Marberry, the only world series pitcher who ever won a game with three pitched balls; Kelly, lanky Giant, who has played in three different positions so far, made circus stops and catches in all of them and won the first game by his batting, besides scoring the tying run in the second. The Washington fans, not one of whom moved to leave Griffith stadium until the last man was out, and the last curse or cheer had died on the Indian summer air, are the real article.

Shortly before 6 a. m. today there were sixty-four fans in line at the bleacher entrance, shivering in the hazy dawn. At that hour before Saturday's game in Washington there were some 3,000 in line outside Griffith stadium and more coming every minute.

Seven Are Not Natives.

And moreover, seven of the first eight men in line at the Polo grounds were not New Yorkers.

The first man in line was J. O Folby, a school teacher from Springfield, Ill. He liked the Giants' chances, he said, as he breakfasted on hot dogs, seated on a vacant lemon box which he had brought along in his flivver.

GETS CREDIT FOR SENATOR VICTORY

Big Righthander Delivered But Three Pitches to Strike Out Travis Jackson and End Giant Rally.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—After breaking even in the two openers at Washington the New York Giants and the Washington Senators jumped into New York today to play three more games of the world's series. Both teams insist they will be the last games of the series.

The players found when they arrived that New York was all worked up to the point where the straphangers remarked casually, "well, there is another game at the Polo Grounds this afternoon."

No Novelty in Gotham.

After the excitement and the verbal turmoil in Washington where the bugs were all pepped up over their first chance to see the Senators in a world series, New York seemed dull and uninterested.

New York has no great civic interest in the Giants and even those with a personal attachment to McGraw's team have seen them in three other recent series and it is no novelty.

Word was passed from the Giants' office that a capacity crowd of 55,000 was expected and it is reasonable to assume that there will be few empty seats. The demand for tickets has been as heavy as it was in the last three years, but it has not approached the rush that made a paradise for the speculators in Washington.

New York didn't turn out any mob to greet or cheer the players It was too early.

Hazy skies hung over the city this morning and there was a feel of rain in the air. The sun was trying to get thru, however, and there was a promise of a clear afternoon.

Buck Harris, young Washington manager said before leaving Washington that he probably would pitch Fred Marberry, a huge young right hander, in the third game. Marberry made a record yesterday by winning a world's series game on three pitched balls. With two down in the ninth inning yesterday and with the winning run on second base, Tom Zachary was taken out of the box and Marberry was called upon to do what he has been doing all season—save the game. Marberry threw three fast ones right past Travis Jackson, a dangerous hitter in a pinch, and the Giants were licked.

Expecting Hugh McQuillan.

John McGraw fell back on his usual "ten minutes before game" when he was asked about his pitchers. McQuillan and Barnes are ready, but McQuillan probably will get the call. If he is right he will be poison for the Senators, but if he is not, he probably will take the shower many minutes before his team mates.

Betting was still at even money on the series with opinion divided on the winner. The Senators are back now where they started from if they can get by today, they may be able to use Walter Johnson in two more games.

The Giants, of course, beat Johnson in the first game, but he was outlucked so badly and so feebly supported in the critical places that even the Giants have no great confidence that they can stop him.

Instead of having a depressing effect upon the team, the defeat of Johnson and the loss of the opening game seemed to arouse the Senators and they played yesterday with winning spirit. Brilliant work behind Zachary saved him in the first inning when he filled the bases with one out and his support got the side out on a beautiful double play.

Kill Talk of Scandal.

The excitement of two close finishes and the squaring of the series seems to have killed all talk of the scandal which had Washington in a frenzy for three days. Commissioner Landis came to New York with the official party last night, but he had nothing to say and very little was being said by the gossip spreaders.

Ohio State Scores First Big Ten Win

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Ohio State, scoring the first Big Ten victory Saturday by defeating Purdue, 7 to 0, faces a chance to increase her early lead in the middle western football conference next Saturday when the Buckeyes journey to Iowa City to engage the once powerful Hawkeyes.

The Iowa-Ohio contest will be the only game Saturday between two members of the Big Ten, all the other teams playing "practice games."

Chair cushions recently marketed are composed of three sheets of rubber, the inner one porous like a sponge.

WAUKEGAN BOWLER WINS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—John Ryan of Waukegan, Ill., won the seventh semi-annual bowling sweepstakes at Peterson's alleys here last night and thereby received $2,500 prize money. His total for the eight games was 1,691. F. Farnum of Fort Wayne, Ind., took third prize and $600 with 1,651. E. Mueller of Milwaukee, copped $225, seventh prize money with 1,633.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Wheat was the market leader at resumption of the trade on the board of trade today and carried other grains higher.

Advances in local wheat prices fully reflected gains in Liverpool. Factors responsible for the upturn in Liverpool were lighter world shipments, drouths and lower reports in the Argentine and Australian export business.

Settlement in corn favored the selling side but strength in wheat carried prices to final top.

Fair export business advanced oats but big world shipments was higher with hogs and lower.

Grain Market Opinions.

Lamson Bros. & Co.: Expect higher prices for wheat and oats but would buy on declines only.

Logan-Alstrin: Look for advancing prices and strongly urge purchases on minor recessions.

Hatch-Chandler & Co.: We still believe in decidedly higher levels for corn, oats and oats also look higher.

Thomson-McKinnon: The European situation is very bullish on wheat. Oats are still cheap.

Logan & Bryan: Would continue to buy wheat on all little setbacks. Oats are cheap and with corn, should be bought.

Chicago Tribune: The public, professionals, foreigners and exporters are all buyers of wheat. They all expect higher prices. Foreigners want wheat, we have and barley. A large part of the American exportable surplus of wheat has been sold and is moving out rapidly. Foreigners are anticipating their wants to such an extent that it is possible they may become "overbought" for some months. That has happened in other years. Millers are buying wheat in the northwest and hedging part of it. Farmers in western Canada are selling their cash wheat to get the premiums over October and are buying May as they expect higher prices later. The corn market is without a balance wheel. The government is due to show how. Oats are the cheapest grain on the list. Rye specialists estimate the United States has practically sold the bulk of its exportable surplus.

Herald-Examiner: Foreign buying of wheat and flour is expected to continue. At New Orleans on Saturday 900,000 barrels of flour arrived from the southwest to be shipped abroad. Galveston at the end of the week cleared 2,000,000 bu. wheat. Lard stocks decreased heavily the last month and are down close to last year's. Deliveries of around 20,000,000 pounds on October contracts the past week have gone into the hands of exporters and refiners.

Chicago Journal of Commerce says: Wheat traders remain mostly bullish but there is less accord in the corn market. Oats are meeting with most favor because of their low price.

Chicago: Early forecast: North Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Montana, Wyoming mostly cloudy, probably showers in Nebraska and Wyoming; rising temperatures Tuesday. Other states, Mostly fair, cooler.—Lamson.

New York Export Sales.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Wheat sales Saturday estimated from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 including two cargoes No. 2 Manitoba from Pacific coast to Japan. Rye sales small and difficult to cheer. Doubtful if amount totaled 100,000 bu. One exporter reported sale of 50,000 bu. oats to continental countries.

Foreign Cables.

Stock Market Opinions.

Clark-Childs & Co.: Oil stocks may be expected any day to resume prominence in the market.

Pynchon & Co.: We suggest that only trading commitments be entered into until the market has had ample opportunity to absorb the current selling wave.

Lamson Bros. & Co.: Would buy seasoned dividend payers on recessions.

Post & Flagg: Political developments will be closely watched from now on.

Block-Maloney & Co.: We would buy only on the drives.

B. C. Forbes says: "Rural prosperity should help business."

New York Times: Political uncertainty accounts for much of the commonly in the stock market.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The reappearance of support at critical points in Saturday's session greatly encouraged speculative sentiment. Morning views of the principal commission houses predicted a brisk recovery through the greater part of the week after further professional attempts to cause additional recessions.

Continuance of the rallying tendency noticeable in the general list at the week end took place in the early dealings. Steel reached better levels on the recovery from Friday's break, getting back to 108, while Baldwin Locomotive reached 121⅞ and American Can 131.

Men and Things

We read the other day that the only two civilizations in history that have had anything in common are that of Rome and that which we live in the midst of today. The one lasted the greater part of a thousand years, and the historians say that it went to pieces because of two things, the socialistic laws that paralyzed industry in the end and the loose relations between the sexes that destroyed the basic unit of all civilizations, the home. People who think there is no danger in the portents of the times are invited to drop in for a half hour with any real historian who is shy on dates but loaded up with data.

If you have any tendencies toward being a Smart Aleck, curb them at oice. We have had Smart Alecks before, youths who were quite sure that they knew it all and that nobody else did, but Loeb and Leopold have made it plain that they have been without peers. They were super s m a r t a l e c k s. They decided there was no God; from which it followed, in their minds, that there actually is none. They decided that they had a perfect right to use the bodies and minds of other youths for experimental purposes, and they went ahead and killed young Franks. They decided they needed a thrill, and proceeded in quest of it. All Smart Alecks do not get imprisoned, but they are standing and qualified candidates for a place inside.

It may be that in time this freedom for which we have fought, bled and died—so to speak—will choke us to death because we don't know how to use it. A great many to whom thinking about a serious subject has all the joyous attractiveness of getting a hand cut off grab liberty of action and employ it to minister to their selfish desires and needs. This, in the course of time, breeds a callousness that expresses itself in acts that we have undertaken to catalog as unsocial; that is, opposed to the general welfare. The opportunity of being one's own boss is often taken to be a license to do as one pleases. It is the biggest feeder to the divorce courts of the country.

Some one has said that the most effective criticism is silence, another case of encompassing great wisdom in a small bundle. If you persist in saying nothing a man may conclude that what he has done is not nearly so good as he thought it was. If you try to tell him where he is wrong, you simply provoke him into an argument in which the more he demands agreement with himself the more firm he becomes in the belief that he is right. The tongue is the member of the family that gets us into our most disagreeable troubles. The notion that because we have a right to an opinion we ought to express it is the exciting cause.

Hard knocks of one kind or another are what develop philosophers, not reading and pondering over what one has conned. Grief, hard work, misadventure, money losses, broken friendships—these are the raw materials out of which philosophy is moulded. The surest way to get truth is to have it pounded into you. Men get more poundings than do women, because they are less s h e l t e r e d and shielded. This may explain why most elderly men are philosophers in one way or another, while it is rare to find an elderly woman who can spread out her past before you and piece a philosophy out of it.

If there is one fact that gets burned into the consciousness of a speaker or writer it is that his popularity depends largely on how firmly he can control the human tendency towards repetition. That is one reason why they go far ahead in their search for topics. You yourself are very apt to repeat a great deal. Note your conversation with other people, and see how often you repeat yourself, how easy a habit it is to fall into. You have the advantage of the speakers and writers because the limited number of your audience makes it possible for you to get away with it, but it will be only for awhile. In time, unless you watch out, you will take to boring people.

THE YOUNG LADY ACROSS THE WAY

The young lady across the way says the law ought to be enforced against rich and poor, high and low, with absolute impartiality and every drunken automobile driver ought to be most severely dealt with, unless of course he's just some young man of good family coming home late from a party or something.
